SUNDAY EVENING:

*Young Richie ROMEO seen drooling over my beautiful, precious, Juliet. “What comely lady is that which doth enrich the hand of yonder knight?” (pg.60)
Eugh, typical boy astounded by the beauty of the woman who tasted the “wormwood to my dug” (pg 40)*

Such entitled Montague of course believes he can sweep mistress Juliet off her feet! “Dear saint, let lips do what hands do, pray” (pg. 66) Maybe he can...

Don’t scroll just yet, its only just getting juicy!

LIP LOCKING, TONGUE TIEING, TONSIL TENIS

Disgusting behavior. The two most profound enemies becoming intimate, so much dramaaaaaaaa. I am so curious to see where this thing goes, but I am LIVIN for it.

I will support my darling Juliet through this journey, but I cannot promise to keep my eyes off Romeo. I think these two will be the talk of the city in no time, but i feel like it may end in shambles.

The MASKED Ball

The Balcony

BACK AGAIN! Sunday Night and even more has happened
Buckle in...

“Juliet is the sun,” (Pg.78) What beautiful words from young Romeo. Finally appreciating her radiant beauty, warmth and life-giving presence.

Oh but there he goes again!

“Arise, fair sun, and kill the envious moon” (Pg. 78). I knew he only had dirty intentions. envious moon, PFFFT, he only wants her virginity.

What do the viewers think - will she give in?

Private 185: She will! She will! Juliet oh so graceful, what an act.

Private 253: Juliet may be a lady in the streets but for sure a freak in the sheets.

Rosaline: I am dying for more of the pathetic Romeo's dangerous love story. Poor boy, I bet he won't pop the cherry.

These two stars crossed lovers have no clue I can hear everything...

My heart, My head, My soul. Who knew Juliet would be willing to leave the Capulet family. Let me give you some background,

“Romeo deny thy father and refuse thy name, Montague, or if thou wilt not, be but sworn my love, and I'll no longer be a Capulet.” (Pg. 80)

Don't stress everyone! I called the mistress Juliet away. Good to know she still has some brain cells, even while seeing the world with rose-coloured glasses.

“But if thou mean'st not well, I do beseech thee to cease thy strife and leave me to my grief,” (Pg. 90)

Secret Wedding

MONDAY MORNING:

I've got a special guest this morning, everyone! Warmly welcome Friar Lawrence
- The key to all the new gossip

This boy was riddling confessions, how was I supposed to know what he wanted, I gave him a slight slap to fix his head on straight.

“Plainly know my heart’s dear love is set on the fair daughter of rich Capulet. Her heart is set on mine. So will thou combine by holy marriage. I pray that though consent to marry us today” (Pg. 100)

Young ROMEO just proposed for me to conduct a secret marriage. I can't believe this!

OFCOURSE! I agreed though, I liveeeee for the drama

Nurse Here, this is where I come in

Mistress Juliet sent me to find the true intentions of young Romeo. In this moment, he confessed the wedding to me. Maybe the young man has a good heart.

WHAT DO THE VIEWERS THINK?

👤 Rosaline: I'll be the first to speak this time... Romeo and good heart in the same sentence? c'mon lets screw our heads before we start saying the Montagues are good people.

👤 Private789: Trust the man for once! He may have good intentions with precious Juliet.

BANISHED FOR MURDER

MONDAY Afternoon:

You heard that right! Evil Romeo Montague has been banished from the city after being found guilty for the murder of TYBALT, Juliets COUSIN!

Surely the Marriage will end in divorce after this torturing disaster.

Evil Romeo trying to talk his way out of banishment, with the support of Benvolio.

This all begins with Tybalt and Mercutio. Tybalt seen thrusting his sword, impaling Mercutio and leaving him for dead. With Mercutio's last gut-wrenching words, he exclaims

“I am hurt, A plague o’ both you houses, I am sped” (Pg. 144)

In anger, Romeo retaliated to avenge his best friend, piercing Tybalt's heart. Benvolio reported to me, “there lies the man slain by young Romeo” (Pg. 150).

HOW WILL JULIET TAKE THIS?!

Upon hearing this she is more upset about her husband of 3 HOURS than her poor cousin, Tybalt.

BACK AGAIN -
Juliet found “DEAD”... or so we thought

ROMEO DEAD!

FAST FORWARD →
THURSDAY:

No one knew, traitor Juliet had FAKED her death, other than Friar Lawrence... not even Romeo knew! what astonishing news too keep from your “dear husband”

After awaking her slumber, there lies Romeos lifeless body, dagger next to him.

I then hear, comming from the tomb, a faint whisper of confession.

“Oh dear Romeo, taken so young before even meeting the child we would have gently nurtured in our future, but for now your happy dagger finds my chest, I will be thy sheath, there rust and let me die” (Pg 174)

And that people... is the deepest insight into the Montague and Capulet's family fued we have ever uncovered. My deerest Juliet, may she lie peacefullywith her soulmate in heaven.
